New Jersey Makes Major Changes To Bail Laws

If you or a family member is arrested and charged with a criminal or disorderly offense be aware: New Jersey bail laws have changed dramatically as of January 2017. A Judge must hold a detention hearing within days of the arrest and it is possible that a person can be held without bail. The State's requirements for proof at that hearing are still being tested in the courts. We are up to date on these changes and ready to help persons charged from the time of arrest.

If someone you love has been arrested and charged with any disorderly, criminal or even traffic offenses, he or she will in a short time start receiving unwanted "advertisement" letters from lawyers in the mail, touting very low fees. Some of those lawyers are not going to carefully read the evidence or talk to the prosecutors to do all they can for you since they work on the "cheap". We pride ourselves on the care and attention each client and each case deserves and keeping our clients fully informed for the hard earned dollars they pay us in fair and reasonable fees in these cases. Please call us for a no charge consultation over the phone to learn if we can help. What you tell us is confidential.

Did You Know?

Many people have the idea that when we file a lawsuit, we are suing the person. We are not. We are suing the insurance company that the person has been paying in order to protect them against an event or loss like this. The insurance company that this person has likely been paying for a very long time and that has already received a lot of money from this person. This information is not something the insurance companies want you to know.

Medical Treatment In Workers' Comp

By Jeremy Lindemann

Under New Jersey law, an employer, usually through their insurance carrier, has the absolute right to control and direct care for a work injury. In other words, the insurance company gets to choose the doctors with whom an injured employee can treat for a work injury. This often gives rise to problems and unfortunately can create a situation where an injured worker does not receive adequate or sufficient medical care for a work injury.

When these issues arise, it is important to have an attorney in your corner to fight back. If a qualified doctor disagrees with the treatment offered by the insurance company or is of the opinion that the worker needs treatment beyond that which the insurance company has offered, there could be a basis to file a Motion for Medical and Temporary Benefits in New Jersey Workers Compensation Court. This could result in a Judge ordering treatment beyond that which the insurance company has authorized as well as other benefits.

If you feel that a workers compensation insurance company has discharged you from treatment prematurely or not offered you adequate medical care, it is important that you discuss this with your lawyer immediately. We are regularly successful in filing these types of motions resulting in additional care and benefits for our clients.

Daniel Snyder Obtains Large Recoveries For Clients

Daniel K. Snyder recently settled a contested case against the owners and managers of an apartment complex. Mr. Snyder's client tripped and fell on a dumpster receiving pipe that was camouflaged in the grass of the property. Mr. Snyder's client sustained significant injuries resulting in hospitalization. The owners/apartment complex denied responsibility for causing the accident and instead blamed the tenant for not being careful while he walked his dog. After a year of litigation and failed mediation, Mr. Snyder was able to resolve the case prior to trial. He successfully demonstrated that the owners had an obligation to remove the pipe or provide adequate warning of its existence on the property. A six-figure settlement was obtained on behalf of the client.

Mr. Snyder also obtained a quarter of a million dollar settlement on behalf of a client rear-ended in a 2015 car crash. The client was stopped at a red traffic light when his vehicle was rear-ended by a young driver. As a result of the crash, the client underwent a fusion to his cervical spine. Initially, the insurance company would not settle the case because the client had previously undergone a fusion 15 years prior to the crash. The insurance company further contended that the injuries were related to his prior condition and a motor vehicle accident in 2000. Mr. Snyder was able to prove that the 2015 crash caused a new and distinct injury to the client's spine and made his prior condition even worse. The case resolved prior to trial.
